GOD'S WINGS

After a disastrous forest fire, a group of forest rangers began to trek up the mountains to assess the damage it had brought to the wild life. On their way one ranger found a dead bird on the ground at the base of a tree. He felt really uncomfortable at this sight and gently turned over the bird with a stick. To his surprise, three tiny chicks scurried from under their dead mother's wings. The loving mother bird, keenly aware of the upcoming disaster had carried her beloved chicks to the base of the tree and had protected them under her wings, even though she knew she would. She could have flown to safety with her strong wings but decided to stay to protect her new born chicks. The mother bird chose to die, so those under the cover of her wings would live. "We thank our mother's for all the sacrifices they have made for us"
